THE CARD LICENCE IS FINALLY HERE!!!

Dear Valued Industry Stakeholders,

The South African Civil Aviation Authority (SACAA) is excited to announce the launch of the new card licence, which replaces the old conventional booklets that have been used to identify approved personnel licence holders. The launch of the card licence moves us one step forward towards achieving our goal of an integrated Information and Communications Technology (ICT) system that will enhance our service offering to the civil aviation industry. More details regarding this exciting and nifty card will be unveiled during a launch event earmarked for Wednesday, 21 April 2021. I am excited to invite you to join us during the virtual launch.

The rollout will take place in specific phases for the different licence types and information about this process will be announced during the launch and continue to be published on the SACAA website and other online communication platforms.

The benefits of the card licences are manifold, including the extent of the information available on the card, increased security features, real-time updates, and the 24-hour availability of the information. Much like any identification document in this age of digital security, the card is embedded with state-of-the-art security features, which make illegal replication almost impossible.

I wish to take this opportunity to encourage you to acquaint yourselves, soon after the launch, with the information relating to the new licence cards so that you can be part of our new service offering trajectory.

Yours faithfully,

Ms Poppy Khoza
Director of Civil Aviation
